INFORMED CONSENT

Naturopathic Medicine is the treatment and prevention of disease by natural means. Naturopathic Doctors assess the whole person, taking into consideration physical, mental, emotional and spiritual aspects of the individual. Gentle, non-invasive techniques are generally used to stimulate the body's inherent healing capacity.

A number of different approaches may be used throughout the course of treatment. Treatments include diet and nutritional supplements, botanical medicine, homeopathy, Asian medicine, hydrotherapy, physical medicine, and lifestyle counselling.

Individual diets and nutritional supplements are recommended to address deficiencies, treat disease processes, and promote health. The benefits may include increased energy, improved digestion, improved immunity, and general well being.

Botanical medicine is a plant-based medicine that involves the use of herbal teas, tinctures, capsules, and other forms of herbal preparations to assist in recovery from injury and disease.

Homeopathy is a form of medicine based on the Law of Similars – i.e., the use of tiny doses of the very thing that causes symptoms in healthy people. These minute doses of plants, animals, or minerals are used to stimulate the body's ability to heal itself.

Asian medicine includes the use of acupuncture, Eastern herbs and dietary changes to eliminate disease and balance body functions. Acupuncture refers to the insertion of sterilized disposable needles through the skin into underlying tissues at specific points on the body. Dietary advice is based on traditional Chinese medical theory.

Physical medicine refers to the use of hands-on techniques such as soft tissue and spinal manipulation, as well as various types of electrical stimulation and therapeutic ultrasound for the purpose of treating musculoskeletal and neurological problems.

Hydrotherapy refers to the use of hot and cold water applications to improve circulation and stimulate the immune system.

Lifestyle counselling involves identifying risk factors and making recommendations to help optimize one's physical, mental, and emotional environment.

During your initial visits, your Naturopathic Doctor will take a thorough case history, do a physical examination, and when indicated, take blood and urine samples. The physical examination may include more specific examinations such as gynecological (e.g., PAP), rectal, prostate, or genital exams.

Even the gentlest therapies may cause complications in certain physiological conditions (e.g., pregnancy, lactation, very young children, or those taking multiple medications). Some therapies must be used with caution in certain diseases such as diabetes, heart, liver or kidney disease. It is very important, therefore, that you inform your doctor immediately of any disease process that you are suffering from as well as any medications (prescription or over-the-counter) that you are taking. If you are pregnant, suspect you are pregnant, or you are breast-feeding, advise your doctor immediately.

There are some slight health risks associated with Naturopathic Medicine. These include, but are not limited to:

- Aggravation of pre-existing symptoms
- Allergic reactions to supplements/herbs
- Fainting with acupuncture needles
- Pain, bruising or injury from acupuncture
- Pain, bruising or injury from venipuncture
